Although this is three times what she imported in 1862, still it is not so great but that she could struggle along, during peace, on her own re sunces, so greatly augmented during recent years by the development of her vast colonial empure But a great war, taxing all her ener gies, will recrease her demand for food and at the same time check or an eff some of her many sources of supply, both at home and abroad. THE QUESTION OF MONFI

Bussia has an enormous army Sic can 1 aut to her war footing of over 4,000,000 men. Au I yet her abrity to support a great war is a matter of doub. One of the main nerves of war, iron, she has She has it in the strength of her numberless legions, all fashioned by discipline and herdship to the needs of war. But another of the main nerves of of war, gold, she has not. She is burdened with an enormous nation d debt that taxes her credit to the utmost, with an ago it was but half as much To meet her interest charges, to support her great trules, and to cover her annual deficits of revenue, Russia his already threed her credit to a point that will bear no further strain. A few facts will show how Russian credit has been going down In 1879 a loan of $75,000,000 at 5 per cent was negotiated by the Rothshills, and commanded 90 cents on the dollar is the market. Four years later at the outbreak of the war with Turkey, a loan for the same amount at o's per cent brought but 85 cents, and was taken by several of the great contagental banks. Three years later, in 1880, it proved impossible to negotiate a further loan of $115,000,000, and in 1882, 55 cents on the dollar was all that could be secured in the market for 3 per cent Bussian bonds to the amount of about $45,000,000 Observe that during this period the bonds of the United States and the concells of Great Britain did not sink below par, and commanded a fluctuating premium. Russia, moreover, has an excessive paper currency, and the most attenuous efforts have no brought it beyond the point which the loans of the country command in he market. From all this it is plan that the make it impossible for her to prosecute a war with the energy which her great military estab-lishment might adjects. England has not be great armies, but she has the mensy, and her money, supporting her smaller armies, will make her formidable to Russua even in the field, While Russia, will not meet her at all mon the

The newspa p 18 which suggest the idea of a bonus of this claracter have no concertion of the devotion which many sc-entific physicians feel for their profession. Hundrels of punetaking men, in every department of medicine, are chastactly every department of medicine, are chaistartly at work in the endeayor to pen trate those mystenes of their profession which have hitheyto belied the most patient research. The true scientist is not inspired by love of gain. Agas, impossit ities are not to be expected. It is it is to expect, the world to be exempt from death, and almost as idle to expect it to be exempt from dieases. For the doctors to iscover "circes" for all maladies would be to do many with death, sate as the result of not dot. with death, save as the result of needed. There is scarcely such a thing as doing of oil age. The old usually suctume to some issues.
